The National Farmers Alliance has declared against the force bill.

Oklahoma is again appealing for aid Oklahoma has a faculty of asking for what she wants.

The Indian scare serves as an excuse for the continued existence of the regular army if nothing else.

Ingalls now takes $50 per capita in circulation. The result of the alliance victory is already bearing fruit.

Jay Gould says he hasn't invested in Hutchinson salt land, and now Hutchinson is wiping weeping eyes.

Democratic statesmen in the house will endeavor to shine this session, in order to give an impetus to their boom for speaker.

Jerry Simpson's socks, or want of socks, has finally become the object of jokes in congress. Jerry's fame will precede him.

A story is going the rounds that Jerry Simpson was expecting defeat in the recent contest. Jerry was not worrying while here.

Quay and Cameron of Pennsylvania are not in favor of the force bill. Mr. Quay may be unpopular but he has a good political eye left yet.

Of all the hard things said about old Sitting Bull, the Indian Chief, the hardest and latest is to the effect that he is turning dupe.

It takes 22,000 bonnets a year to supply the female soldiers of the Salvation army. There must be hallooah raised when the bills come in.

Mr. Parnell's recent actions have served to dispel the illusion heretofore existing in America that he is the most unselfish statesman in the world.

Senator Stanford has precipitated himself on a startled public as a presidential aspirant. Ben Harrison's path to a renomination is not strewn with roses.

A widespread interest is being awakened in irrigation since the theory of the underflow has been developed. The south side canal has become world famous.

It is expected that the next legislature will bite pennies in two on the appropriations. As Ford county wants a small slice, we hope the rumor is unfounded.

A Dakota man introduced a bill providing relief for "Kansas Sufferers." The only sufferers needing relief are some republican candidates who were in the late cyclone.

In speaking of the foot race, the Globe says: "The stranger won by a small majority." We fear, Louis, that you are still thinking of the late unpleasantness. Eh?

Bill Nye is going to write a funny play. If it is no funnier than his newspaper articles, laughter will not cause buttons to fly off the wearing apparel of audiences.

Since ordinary people have begun using canes, the dudes refuse to carry them. If ordinary people would smoke cigarettes and wear baggy trousers, the duds might be reformed.

The republican papers say the defeat of Ingalls means financial disaster to Kansas. Its tariff, as a result of this state's prosperity rests on as slim a foundation as Mr. Ingalls.

The farmers' alliance seems to have dug for roots in their Florida convention. If there is anything in the principles they advocate, there is certainly room for a third and even a fourth party.

The various manufacturers of reapers and mowers have consolidated into one concern with a capital of $20,000,000. About the only things left out in the cold in this trust business are newspapers.

Mr. Plumb is doing a mighty big service to the democratic party by again introducing the free coinage bill, for while there is small likelihood of its passage, it will again put the republican party on record.

Kansas men took a conspicuous part in the national farmer's alliance meeting. Kansas men may be metamorphosed by any political change, but they still show the Kansas brand wherever they may be.

It has finally been decided to increase the membership of congress 24 members making 356 members in all. Kansas gains one congressman under this apportionment, and there is but little doubt that this district will be divided.

John Ingalls attributes the uprising in Kansas to Bellamy's "Looking Backward." Trust John to deliver an original opinion.

Justin McCarthy has been elected leader of the Irish party, but Mr. Parnell refuses to resign. The money being raised in America is now sent to McCarthy instead of Parnell. If money is what talks, America is for McCarthy.

The government offers the Indian $7,000,000 for the strip, Andy Snyder $10,000,000 and another company $20,000,000. It would be safe to offer $100,000,000 for the government will have it in spite of all private bids.

A bill was introduced at the last session of congress appropriating $6,200,000 to develop the harbor of Galveston. As there is every likelihood of a deficiency, owing to an increase of pension appropriations, it is doubtful if the bill will pass.

It is amusing to read in the telegraphic dispatches of some of our daily exchanges of the grave condition of financial affairs, and then read an editorial in the same issue to the effect that business is all right, money plenty and no danger of a stringency. The calamity shriekers are the more consistent of the two.

The Wichita Beacon and Topeka Democrat, the latter a Hill booster, the former a Cleveland boomer, are jabbing long poles at each other in a dispute as to what was the principal issue made by the people's party in the last campaign. It would be more profitable to study what plunged our own party into the fathomless abyss.

Talking about tariff and high prices, the republicans are laying the advanced price of eggs to the McKinley bill. The fact is this cool weather has discouraged the hen to an extent that she doesn't propose to lay until she gets used to the change. The republicans are getting mighty hard up when they take advantage of the indisposition of an old hen to restore confidence in the high tariff.

The Times advises its democratic contemporary to let up on the Hill boom. Let brother Peter alone. If it were a mole hill he might succeed in wiping it out of existence, but it is doubtful if he can add one atom to the majestic Hill of New York. If the Times wishes to boom its friend Grover it should use its influence in getting more papers like the Democrat to espouse the cause of Mr. Hill—Globe.

We don't particularly want to boom Grover, but we do want to save brother Peter from going on a wild goose chase. It is not that we love brother Peter less, but we pity his readers more. If the Globe will show the Times in a united effort to join brother Peter that he can't chuck a Hill down the aschophagus of his readers all at one time, we may each confidently expect a vote of thanks from brother Peter's readers.

A CHANGE WILL COME. No one can look at the gradual but sure change going on all over the west and south, regarding tariff and free coinage, without being struck with the fact that the sentiment of these sections is crystallizing in favor of a reform of these two questions.

The two issues are bound together so closely, that a reform in one will lessen the tension on the other. A reform of both would bring prosperity with a bound, bring peace and contentment where only strife and discord now reign.

Why reform is demanded on these two important questions more particularly in the west and south, is easily understood if one will but look at the conditions surrounding the two sections. Both are essentially producing regions—the south raw material for clothing, the west breadstuffs and meat. They are exporters and must sell in competition with the world. Their products go to foreign markets, where similar products are for sale, raised in countries where laborers in the field are paid from eight to twelve cents per day. It is the price obtained by selling against this competition that fixes the price paid for every bushel of wheat or bale of cotton, whether sold at home or abroad. They can receive no benefit from a protective tariff because they cannot get away from the inexorable law of supply and demand, made in the markets of the world. If there was not enough wheat raised in the United States to supply the demand, and the grain shipped in to supply the deficiency paid a duty, then a tariff on cereals would raise the price, but otherwise it will not. The farmer or planter whose wheat or cotton has come in competition with the world in Liverpool or Manchester, buys clothing and everything else indirectly from the eastern states, where forty per cent is added by means of a tariff, to the natural price resulting from the law of supply and demand.

This tariff, running through a period of twenty-five years, has been draining the wealth of the west to the east. It has been in the nature of a tax on the resources of two sections of the country in order that the east might prosper. The result is that the east is today the moneyed section of the country. It is the banker, the south and west borrowers. The money drain from the west has reduced the circulating medium to a minimum, with a paupering effect.

horbitant high rate of interest. The east, having a superabundance of capital, has loaned money to the west until it practically owns it, and the tariff drain has been augmented by the interest drain. Coupled with this is the fact that the government has continued to contract the currency until to-day we are doing business on a basis of six dollars per head whereas it should be fifty.

The east has developed. The south and west are still developing, and new enterprises, new industries, new farms and business of every nature would be expanding, going forward in the march of progress if money was plenty. Money is the great factor in developing a new country, and without it projects languish and die. When money becomes scarce, interest becomes high and capitalists become lenders instead of investing money in a way that will develop the resources of the country. The east does not want an increase in the currency, because that would allow the west to escape from paying interest toll. The tremendous depreciation in values of every kind, the stagnation of trade, the actual want, the idle men—all may be traced to the evils of the tariff and the contraction of the currency.

The masses are slowly but surely awakening to a knowledge of the causes that are producing these hard times and are preparing to reform this suicidal policy. The sophistries manufactured by the favored classes have had their day, and truth has once more risen to refute chicanery and deception. Whether it be democratic or republican, farmers' alliance or prohibitionist, the voters must and eventually will come to a realization that of the evils of these two policies as now pursued.

A SINGERS ROYAL QUEST. Once every summer Queen Victoria drives over from her Balmoral Castle to the Scottish Highlands home of Madam Albani Gye, the famous prima donna, where the latter entertains her at an informal tea. For years the Queen has made a practice of this, a compliment which Her Majesty bestows upon no other woman in the Kingdom. It is a return for Madam Albani's appearance each year at court to sing before the Queen, and to the prima donna it affords an exceptional glance at England's Royal Sovereign.

"No outsiders are ever present," says Madam Albani, "and I see Victoria as a woman; never as a Queen." "How do you entertain your royal guest?" was asked of the prima donna by a friend.

And for more than an hour the singer held the uninterrupted interest of a private dinner party with the story of how she served a tea for the Queen.

So full of interest was the narrative that Madam Albani was induced to write out the account, and it will shortly appear in the Ladies' Home Journal of Philadelphia, under the title of "Victoria at my Tea Table." Of its freshness of interest the caption of the article is the best indication.

A copy of the last portrait taken of Queen Victoria, and printed only for Her Majesty and the royal family will accompany this article. "It will be my last portrait," wrote the Queen on this presentation copy, which is the only copy passed outside of the royal family.
